Specifications

When the series III / Tipo E Dino were phased in during the middle of 1971, production had risen from three cars a week to three every day. Very little was actually changed on series III cars apart from new gear ratios and a different fuel supply system. Production of both GT and GTS came to an end in 1974, a total of 2487 GT were built, 488 of which were right-hand drive.

This car, chassis 07208, is a right-hand drive GT that originally left the factory in October 1973 and was registered in the UK in December 1975. This beautiful example has Electrical Windows as factory option and is indicating what is believed to be a genuine 34,000 miles from new, this example has many MOT's and service invoices dating all the way back to 1973.
